ROJESTVENSKY BOLDLY SAILS NORTHWARD.

Japanese Will Establish Base Near Straits of Formosa.

NO HURRY TO FIGHT.

Russian Admiral Will Seek To Unite His Scattered Forces.

It is the belief of the Russian Admiralty at St. Petersburg that Admiral Rojestvensky is seeking to effect a junction of the divisions of his squadron, and it is considered probable that the concentration will be effected at Cape Padaran on the eastern coast of Cochinchina. The Admiralty is still of the opinion that the great naval battle will be fought in the Straits of Formosa.

So far as ascertainable, Rojestvensky has no intention of putting into Saigon, the entrance to that port being narrow, but it is believed he will remain in the open sea. It is learned that the Russian ships have on board patent appliances consisting of steel brushes attached to a sort of beltyband, which, running under the vessel, can be used quite effectively to clean the bottom. The speed of warships, it is calculated, can be increased at least a knot.

It is believed that the action of the Japanese Government in closing Kelung, Formosa, indicates that this port will be used by Admiral Togo as a base for his fleet.

Dispatches from Manchuria say that Gen. Kawanuma and Gen. Nogi are moving to cut Russian communication with Vladivostok. Japan is said to be preparing to have more than a million soldiers in the field by next fall.

TWO RUNAWAYS.

One Vehicle Damaged and
Mrs. West Slightly Injured.

A team attached to Renshaw & Armstrong's transfer wagon became frightened at some object near the L. & N. freight depot yesterday shortly after noon and ran off. They came down Sixth street at a lively clip and when Main street was reached they attempted to turn and in doing so ran into Judge W. T. Fowler's surrey. One of the shafts of the vehicle was broken and it was otherwise damaged. The horse attached to the surrey was not badly hurt, but it was a narrow escape for the animal. The horse belonged to Mr. D. T. Cranor.

During the military parade just before noon a team ran away on South Main. The wagon struck a buggy belonging to Mr. James West. Mrs. West had just gotten out of the buggy and she held on to the lines, thus preventing her horse from running off, too. One of Mrs. West's hands was hurt in the accident, but no serious consequences are anticipated. The runaway team was stopped in front of Mr. M. C. Forbes' residence.

Invitations to participate have been sent every veteran association, North and South. The program contemplates more than thirty speeches of greeting and response, with an address of welcome by Gen. C. H. Grosvenor, of Ohio. Other speakers will be Gen. Chase, past department commander, Grand Army of the Republic; Captain Griffith and Gen. Rosser, the youngest of the brigadier generals of the Confederate army.

PARK IMPROVEMENTS.

Morris Has Sent in Signed
Contract and Moore Is Expected to Report.

Contracts have been let for the improvements on the park and the work is under way. The fence on two sides will be raised two feet higher with sign boards. This space is being sold to merchants and those desiring to secure same should see Director John Stites. The grounds will be rolled and smoothed over and the entrance will be made just north of the bleachers. A ticket office will be built and equipped with a telephone for the use of the officials and patrons. The grandstand will be divided and the east end will be cushioned and made reserved seats and a small additional price will be charged for these seats. All of the ground outside will be enclosed with a wire fence and the whole grounds covered by the lease will be posted and trespassers kept off by law.

The players have all been ordered to report next Thursday. Charlie Bomar arrived Tuesday and is the first on the ground. He is in fine condition and his pitching arm is no longer weak. The rest has made it all right.

Another new player named Baird is in the city, and has been signed for a try-out. He is an infielder.

Claude Veatch, of Danville, Ky., is another new man who has been signed. He played last year with a Franklin, Ind., team.

Forest Morris has sent in his contract, making 8 out of twelve of the old team to sign. Moore and Brady are expected to return. There will be two weeks of lively practice before the season opens.

Henderson let out 11 new men Tuesday who were tried and failed to make good.

The Pittsburgh Colts beat Paducah in a practice game Sunday by 7 to 2.

The Register says: "Smith, a first baseman from Georgetown, O., has arrived and will be tried-out by Manager Lloyd. He is a big fellow and if he can play the bag and hit will strengthen the team."

"Doyle, an outfielder from Nashville, Tenn., is here for a trial. Paducah is certainly in need of one or two hard hitting outfielders. If they can't hit outfielders are no good."

MAYFIELD'S FACTORY.

Complete Collapse of a Once
Prosperous Plant.

The Beaumont Soap Co., which has cost the stockholders over $75,000 was sold under the hammer by the receiver for $6,300. This is a well equipped plant but somehow it has been a failure and the stockholders have lost money very heavily. We hope that a new company can be organized and put the plant in operation. — Messenger.

The remarkably fast time which has been made in the automobile races at Ormond Beach, Florida, when S. L. The evolution of speed has been marvelous. One does not have to tax his memory severely to recall the air that was caused when the first mile under two minutes was made on a bicycle. "Marvelous, marvelous!" people said. "It will stand as a record for years to come." And now this latest contrivance of man's ingenuity in traveling miles in less than 35 seconds. It would seem that this must surely be the acme of speed. Yet it is said an electric train in Germany can travel at the rate of 120 miles an hour, or two miles a minute.

Such a prediction as this seems too absurd to be worthy of any consideration whatever. Three miles a minute would mean one mile in 20 seconds. Absolutely impossible, the skeptic will say. But stop a minute. Had a prophet of 30 years ago possessed the temerity to predict an accomplishment such as was made by Mr. Bowden, what sort of a reputation would his prophecy have received? He would either have been told that he was crazy or advised to use another brand of dream producing drug.

On June 15, 1896, the Connecticut Record contained the following notice: "Pace trotting yesterday afternoon, the Hadden's record of one mile's distance was trotted around in two minutes and 59 seconds by a horse called Xanthe from New Haven, a rate of speed never excelled in this country."

Readers of that item probably imagined the horse a most remarkable animal, or possibly wagged their heads knowingly and murmured something about the exaggeration of the press. It was in 1892, 36 years later, that the country was amazed by the performance of Nancy Hanks, who broke all records for a mile by trotting the distance in 2:04. Competent judges of harness horses asserted confidently at that time that this was a mark that could never be surpassed. Still, in August, 1901, Crescenzo stepped the distance in 2:04, while two years later the remarkable little race mare, Lou Dillon, lowered the mark to 1:58, where it now stands. And that is not all. Several horsemen have said that they had seen a horse make a mile in one minute and 52 seconds people gazed in wonder, as is shown by the following epigram published in one of the newspapers of the time: "Recall Salvo! running his record against time on the Monmouth track in the days of long ago. Recall the English express well set on a straight line across the banks of the Hudson, and you may form a dim idea of the spectacle presented by Henry Hanks, the boy rider, as in the wake of a motor he flashed around the track at Washington."

Probably the most wonderful performance ever made on a bicycle was the achievement of Charles M. Murphy, who on June 30, 1899, maintained his equilibrium on a bicycle in the vortex of a Long Island railroad train, and in that manner rode, or was swirled, one mile in 57.14 seconds. Murphy's mile, however, was made under exceptional circumstances and abnormal conditions, and is for that reason a thing apart.

HIS CHICKEN FARM.

When young Mr. Harber announced that he intended retiring permanently from the quiet commercial pursuits which had hitherto engaged him in the employ of Binks & Co. and would thereafter devote his talents and energies to a chicken farm in the pastoral regions of Michigan, the outburst of indignation he expected from his family, including all his wife's relatives, was not long in coming.

"What! Give up your home in the city and immerse yourself on a chicken farm!" exclaimed his wife's elder sister. "The man must be crazy."

"He seems quite determined," said Mrs. Harber, rather doubtfully.

"That comes of his reading so many magazines," announced one of his brothers-in-law. "They're always full of pipe stories about people who make fortunes raising chickens. You should take a firm stand against it."

Thus advised, Mrs. Harber made a feeble and futile protest, for the new move would mean separation from her sisters, her cousins and her aunt, and the taking up of life's burdens in a strange community.

"What can we do with the house?" she asked her enthusiastic husband, who had hitherto spent his odd moments admiring his home from various points of view.

"We will rent it," he answered, promptly. "We will have no trouble renting so pretty and well-situated a home as this. While we are making money on our chicken farm in Michigan the house will be bringing in more money over here. It is a great scheme, no matter how you look at it."

Mrs. Harber knew her husband well enough to realize that further argument was useless and she easily began making preparations for the hazard of new fortune.

"We'll probably get somebody in here who will chop kindlings on the hardwood floors and drive nails in the parlor walls," she warned her husband. "I know the house will be ruined."

"Don't worry," he returned, cheerfully. "I've got that all fixed. The Joneses will take the house. They have been living in steam-heated flats so long that Jones says they will just revel in a house again with a big yard like ours, where they can play croquet. He is a fend on cutting the grass, I understand."

"Be sure and make them sign a lease," cautioned Mrs. Harber. "We don't want them moving out after a month or so while we are away over there in Michigan and then having tramps move in or thieves cut out the lead pipes."

"Leave it to me," said Harber. "I'll have everything fixed up in shape. Why, you are going to have the time of your life on this little chicken farm—pure air and fresh milk and everything."

"Are you going to have chickens that give milk?" sniffed Mrs. Harber. Her husband scorned to answer.

In due time the Joneses came over and were delighted with the house. Mrs. Harber explained about the storeroom and the shed and showed Mrs. Jones where the storm ash were kept.

"I suppose we'd better make the lease for a year," suggested Harber. "Oh, maybe it would be better to make it six months," said Jones. "You may get tired of raising chickens."

"Not me," said Harber, enthusiastically. "I expect to stay in Michigan indefinitely. However, we'll make it six months if you say so. By the way, we would like to keep one of the spare bedrooms to store our furniture in."

That was agreed to, the lease was signed and in two days the Joneses moved in. Harber and his wife went to her mother's to live while Harber completed his duties with the real estate man for the Michigan farm.

At the end of the week he came home and blithely told his wife it was all off. "I have decided not to go," he explained. "We'll just move back into the house and maybe we'll get the chicken farm in a year or two."

"But what about the Joneses?" asked Mrs. Harber, in alarm. "They won't want to give up the house."

"Oh, that'll be all right," said Harber, confidently. "It's our house, you know. They wouldn't stay where they weren't wanted."

When he explained his change of heart to Jones and suggested the advisability of that gentleman moving out, Jones laughed long and loud.

"Why, we're just beginning to like it," he declared. "We haven't the least idea of moving till our lease expires. You can have access to the room where your furniture is now and then, but this is our house, you know."

Baldy Harber returned to his wife's mother's home, where the couple had a single room. There they settled down to wait for the lease to expire.

A month later Harber went around to the house to get some tableware out of one of the packing boxes in the storeroom. Jones met him cordially.

"Say, Harber," he said, "just come around to the back yard a minute. I want to show you something."

Harber followed him, he gasped when he reached the kitchen door. The yard was full of chickens.

TO OUR FARMER FRIENDS.....

Clarksville, Tennessee, January 3rd, 1905.—This crop of tobacco, being of better quality and shorter in average yield, are two reasons for expecting better prices. Besides, full confidence as to the final outcome, may be based upon the wise conclusion of the farmer to prize and put his tobacco in condition to hold for the best demands, only to be found on the open markets. The force of combines, who have ignored open markets in order to fix lower prices in the country is broken, and we predict an era of greater prosperity will come to tobacco growers. The farmers will not regret the move they have made, and the more compact their organization, the greater their influence.

As we have done for the many years past, we solicit the patronage of farmers. As heretofore, our best efforts in their behalf can safely be relied upon. Our warehouse is open day and night, and provided with good, comfortable free quarters for teams and teamsters under the same roof.

BEAUTY AND BEAST

It was an exceedingly small dog, but its ferocity was almost amazing. As Wistrom passed the house with the stone front it darted out from the side passage in a perfect fury of angry excitement, and turned him with paroxysmal barking the entire length of the low fence that separated the lawn from the street.

A day or two later the same thing occurred. This time Wistrom made a threatening demonstration with his umbrella. It was an unwise thing to do, as it did not have a soothing effect on the little animal, which from that time forth seemed to lie in wait for the young man, who lived only a few hours away. The moment he came in sight that brown, hairy streak would shoot from the passage, leap at him, all but sealing the tiny pickets, and raised such a clamor of hatred that it seemed the whole street must be alarmed. Wistrom became more and more resentful. The dog got on his nerves.

One morning as Wistrom started out he noticed that the front gate of the house with the stone front had been left open. He gripped his umbrella and took a deep breath, as he heard the preliminary yelp of defiance at the passage entry. The next moment the dog was at the fence and the man discovered the open gate, and was out on the sidewalk at Wistrom's heels. Wistrom stopped. The dog retreated, still barking furiously, he went on and the dog was again yapping at his heels. Then, without turning, Wistrom brought his umbrella around with vicious force and—oh, joy!—caught the dog on the ribs.

"Oh, you coward!" It was a clear, youthful feminine voice. Wistrom looked up as the house door slammed and a girl with very pink cheeks and abundant yellow hair—a very pretty girl—came running down the steps and caught up the howling dog in her arms.

"How could you be so cruel as to hit a poor little dog like that!" she demanded, turning an indignant pair of very blue eyes on Wistrom.

"I didn't exactly mean to hit him so hard," lied Wistrom in some confusion. "You see—"

But the girl turned her back on him contemptuously and ran up the steps and into the house, carrying her pet with her.

It was a remarkable thing, but Wistrom instantly regretted hitting the dog.

All day long he thought of the girl with the blue eyes and yellow hair, and the more he thought of her the more poignant became his regret. After all, on eminent authority, it was the nature and delight of dogs to bark and bite, and why should they be struck with an umbrella for following a purely natural impulse?

For weeks Wistrom looked in vain at the house as he passed for some sign of the pretty girl. He did not even see the dog. On Sundays, when he was at home all day he did not notice but sit by the window waiting to see her. Some time soon, he thought, the chance would come, and then—

It came at last, that chance. Wistrom was walking down an obscure street one afternoon when he saw a forlorn and mud-caked little dog that was shivering and whining disconsolately in the shelter of a doorway. There was something familiar about that dog, Wistrom thought, and he stopped to look at it more attentively. Yes, it was certainly the dog. If there had been any doubt about it, the way he snarled and snapped when Wistrom stooped to pick him up would have instantly dispelled it. Undoubtedly the dog had strayed away.

Well, muddy and wet as he was, Wistrom stooped and underneath his coat, to the coat's and a white waistcoat's ruin, and half an hour later he was ringing the bell of the house with the stone front. An elderly woman answered the ring, and went into ecstasies of delight at the sight of the dog. It was quite a touching reason. She—the elderly lady—was most grateful to Wistrom, too, and so pleased to learn that he was a neighbor. The poor dog, she explained, had been confined to the house in consequence of a ruffianly young hoodlum having abused him, and on being let out for exercise had scampered off. Wistrom coughed behind his hand. "Your daughter will, no doubt, be glad to see her pet again," he said, politely.

"My daughter?" "I—supposed the young lady to be your daughter," said Wistrom. "A rather tall young lady, with blue eyes."

"Oh," said the lady of the house, "that was my niece, who was making me a visit a few weeks ago. She went back to Dubuque and was married last Thursday. A lovely girl!"

Rags was growing at his rescuer. And the next morning as Wistrom passed he ran out and barked at him as savagely as ever.—Boston Budget.

WILL USE THE QUILT.

Romantic Marriage of a Paducah Man and Milton Woman.

Milton, Ky., April 11.—A romantic wedding took place here Sunday. The contracting parties were Miss Louise Singer, of new Milton, and Mr. Harry G. Wilson, of Paducah. Miss Singer has earned something of a national reputation by a quilt which she placed during the past ten years. This remarkable quilt contains 122,616 pieces. Each piece is only one-eighth of an inch square. She placed it on exhibition in the Kentucky building at the World's Fair, St. Louis, last year, and received for it $50 as a premium.

Mr. Wilson saw it there, and his admiration for the art soon led to a stronger admiration for the artist. He began a correspondence with her, exchanged photographs, fell in love, came here last Saturday, procured his license and they were married at her home Sunday.

Miss Singer is thirty-seven years of age and belongs to one of the best families here. Mr. Wilson is thirty-two. They will make their home in this county.

TELEPHONING ON CONGO.

Impossible to Talk During the Middle of the Day Because of the Heat.

The telegraph and telephone lines of the Belgian Congo region show some peculiarities both in the construction of the lines and their operation, owing to the climate and the character of the country.

Where the lines run through the forests, the wires are placed as much as possible upon trees, and in other cases upon iron poles, says the Scientific American. The wire, which is of phosphor-bronze, is painted black, so as not to attract the attention of the natives, who lay hands upon all the copper they can find.

The other brilliant objects of the line, such as the insulators, are also painted black. A cutting 30 feet wide is made through the forest for the line, so that there is no risk of fire or from falling trees.

Besides the telegraph offices of Leopoldville, Kwamouth and Coquilhatville, there are nine telephone offices and six cabins. The latter are used for communicating with the steamboats on the river.

The first hours after sunset are the best for telephoning, and it is possible to telephone direct from Matata to Kwamouth, or 380 miles. From the latter point to Boma, or 410 miles, the voice is still heard.

After ten a. m. the heat makes it impossible to use the telephone, especially in the rainy season. This is due to the fact that a return wire is not used, and the use of the earth return is accompanied by great disturbance in the middle of the day.

The greatest enemies of the telephone lines are the wild animals. In the rainy season atmospheric discharges often strike the wires, therefore the lines need to be constantly inspected and repaired.

Tea in Great Britain.

Figures published by the Tea Brokers' association of London for the five months ending October 31, 1904, show a diminution in the consumption of tea in the British isles to the extent of 4,000,000 pounds, as compared with the corresponding time in 1903, an indication of dire poverty.

New Directory.

The Home Telephone Company has issued its April Directory, showing a steady increase in the number of subscribers. The directory has several good features not in the former ones. Those absent without excuse are liable to a fine of $5 for missing inspection and for further punishment for disobedience of orders. The inspection was public and a large crowd of visitors was on hand during the inspection, which lasted from 8 to 10 p. m.

Capt. Saville was in charge of the inspection and the inspection was rigid in the extreme. No detail was overlooked.

The company was well prepared and Capt. Saville appeared to be greatly pleased with the excellent condition of the company.

The company was inspected in heavy marching order and the equipment was found perfect in every detail, all in first-class condition. Uniforms were neat and clean, the men all newly shaven, neatly attired and carefully prepared in every way for the inspection.

The report will of course be made in due form, but Capt. Saville did not hesitate to say that the inspection was one of the best he had made.

After the inspection was over Col. Gaines took charge and gave some instructions to the company, complimenting the men highly. He said he commanded the Hopkinsville men in the Spanish war and felt closely allied to the company on that account.

Capt. Saville and Col. Gaines left yesterday for Bowling Green, where they inspected Co. H last night.

TIME FOR REFLECTION.

Will Be Given a Youth Who Played Outlaw.

Charles Rodgers, Webster county's noted young outlaw, was sentenced to serve three years in the penitentiary for house stealing at Dixon Thursday. He was tried on a charge of housebreaking Friday and it is thought several years more will be added to his term, says the hustler.

Rodgers was the terror of Webster and Hopkins county all last summer. He and his brother, William, first became prominent when they robbed the home of their uncle, Josh Howton, in the Happy Hollow country in broad daylight. A deputy sheriff who went to Providence to arrest them succeeded, with the assistance of Marshal Wallace, of Providence, in arresting the brother, but Charles Rodgers turned the officers back from the house where he lived with a Winchester rifle.

The young man then turned outlaw. He lived in parts of Webster and Hopkins counties for several months, being given shelter by the people who were friendly to him. Later he robbed a house and stole a horse from J. B. Vandiver, near Gelsa, Webster county, last November.

About three months ago he was arrested by his uncle who succeeded in capturing him before the young man could use his gun. He was placed in jail at Dixon and his trial Thursday resulted in the sentence of three years.

AFTER 26 YEARS A NEGRO COMES BACK FOR TRIAL.

Jim Holloway Arrested For Killing Andrew Bradshaw August 5th, 1879.

CAUGHT IN PADUCAH.

Indictment Filed Away 20 Years Ago Hunted Up and Reinstated.

At the August election held near Bellevue, August 4, 1879, a negro named Jim Holloway shot and mortally wounded another negro named Andrew Bradshaw. After lingering for a few days, Bradshaw died.

The files of the Kentuckian show that the negroes were at a brandance not far from the polls and that the shooting was done with a small 22 calibre pistol. Bradshaw was hit in the bowels. Holloway disappeared down the road and never returned to Bellevue.

More than a quarter of a century has elapsed, but Holloway has at last been caught and will be tried for the crime. He was arrested at Paducah Monday and is now in jail here. At the September court 1879 he was indicted, but as he could not be found the indictment was fled away in 1885 with leave to reinstate. A few days ago Holland was located at Paducah and Deputy Sheriff Geo. M. Clark was detailed to go and get him. He was found working in a gravel pit and admitted his identity. The old indictment had been resurrected from a heap of rubbish in the tower of the court house and was reinstated just before court adjourned last week. It bore the name of Rice Dulin as foreman. The witnesses named are Theo. Mabry, Joe Winn, Mack Johnson, Claude R. Clark and Mack Ricketts. Mr. Clark is the present circuit court clerk and his brother, Geo. Clark, made the arrest. They were small children at the time the affair occurred.

The Kentuckian's account of the killing was written by the present editor, who had begun his newspaper career a few months before.

Judge John R. Grace, Sheriff C. M. Brown, foreman Rice Dulin, and Clerk B. T. Underwood, who was in office when the indictment was fled away, are all dead.

Holloway says that he went to Birmingham in Marshall county, where he lived seven years. He never communicated with his family in this county. From Marshall county he moved to Paducah, where he has been for seventeen years, working a gravel pit and at present has a contract to furnish gravel to the city. He was 31 years old when he left 26 years ago. Time has apparently dealt kindly with him, as he is still physically well-preserved.

He claims that the pistol was discharged as he pulled it from his pocket and that Bradshaw was shot accidentally. The Kentuckian's account the day after the shooting says that "Holloway had out his pistol and was 'bullying' or threatening Bradshaw when the weapon went off." Whiskey was flowing freely at the brandance and Holloway was under the influence of liquor.

A Paducah paper says Holloway has been an industrious working man there and was well known. Bellevue, where the killing occurred, is no longer on the map. It was about two miles east of the present town of Gracely.

Holloway had been living under an assumed name since the killing. He was known in Paducah as "Bill Houston," and, in addition to gravel digging and well digging, he told fortunes.

Full of Tragic Meaning are those lines from J. H. Simmons, of Casey, Ia. Think what might have resulted from his terrible cough if he had not taken the medicine about which he writes: "I had a terrible cough, that disturbed my night's rest. I tried everything, but nothing would relieve it, until I took Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds, which completely cured me." Instantly relieves and permanently cures all throat and lung diseases; prevents grip and pneumonia. At R. C. Hardwick's, druggist; guaranteed; 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

Mayor Holton. Mr. M. D. Holton, formerly of this city, known to his friends as Ditz Holton, is now Mayor of Murray. He is a brother of Henry Holton, "Duke of Calloway."

LYSANDER'S LATE RAISE.

Ways of a Woman Impress Themselves on a Good Husband in Peculiar Way.

Lysander Hemenway was not in a happy frame of mind. Anyone could have seen that, asserts the Chicago Record-Herald. His friend Farman saw it, and, going over to him, asked:

"What's the matter, old man? Any of the children sick?"

"No," Hemenway replied, "the little ones are all well. Sometimes I almost wish they were not as strong as they happen to be. You, being a bachelor, don't know how a healthy child can kick holes through shoes and things. But I wasn't thinking of the children. Thank heaven, I've always been able to keep them well clothed and well fed, and I guess any man could do that that has no cause to make a serious howl. No, I'll tell you what's the matter. For the past three or four years my wife has been urging me to strike for a raise of salary. Well, I've never blamed her for wanting me to make more money than I've been getting, but I've always felt that if my employers thought that I was worth more to them than they were paying me they'd give me an increase without being asked to do it. My wife couldn't see it that way, though, and kept dinging away and dinging away until she got me desperate, so just before the beginning of the new year I decided to spunk up and ask for more money."

He stopped and drew a long, sad sigh.

"Bahaw, never mind, old man," his friend urged. "There's no use letting yourself be floored in this way. Brace up. You're still good for 20 years of hard work and you can catch on some where in spite of the fact that you've got gray hairs above your ears. I'll do what I can to—"

"Say, what are you talking about? I didn't get fired. They gave me a raise of $5 a week and pretended to be glad to do it. The trouble is that my wife now wakes me up at night to be scolded for the amount I've lost by not asking for the advance when she first suggested it."

AN IRISHMAN'S DILEMMA.

Terrible Situation Easily Surmounted by Waking Up from an Impromptu Dream.

They were cracking "hard nuts" in the smoking room after the close of the day were over. Some difficult cases of conscience had just been related and there a conflict existed between duty and inclination, and one of those stories in Short Stories, suggested the following "Irish difficulty":

"As I was fishing one day," said Con MacMahon, "I fell asleep. A terrible thing happened. There was I in a boat, with two collops, Kathleen an' Maureen, faith, and didn't I. I dote on Kathleen, though sorta a bit she cared for me. This is a contrary world, especially in Kerry, for Maureen, it was easy to see, liked me better than any of the other boys, though meself could hardly bear the sight of her. But sure she was Kathleen's friend, so I had to put up with her company."

"Well, an awful storm came on, the waves rose mountains high, an' the girls called on all the saints to protect an' save them. There was no chance with three of us in the boat. It had to be lightened; what was a body to do? I was fair distracted. Kathleen I couldn't part with, an' I dar'n't throw Maureen into the angry waves. Can any of yez tell me what I did?"

Con's intelligent and interested audience suggested different ways of salvation; none were correct.

"I awoke," said the story teller. "Yer all seem to forget I had been asleep."

Doubting Dennis.

Judy—Will ye give me yer promise, Dennis, that ye'll love me forever?"

Dennis—Sure, an' O'p'd like to do that same, Judy, but O'm hardly of the opinion that O'll last as long as that.—N. Y. Times.

Slang in the Bible.

Many phrases which are looked upon as "slang" have very respectable origins. For instance, "escaped by the skin of my teeth" is a sentence used in the 20th verse, 19th chapter of Job.

POWDER'S EFFECT ON GUN.

More Powerful Kind Damage Ordnance by Erosion or Burning—English Article Reported.

A serious trouble that confronts modern artillery is the tendency of the smokeless powder that is now exclusively used to burn out the interior of the barrel of the gun, particularly near the powder chamber. The powder itself is the cause of more or less anxiety because of its chemical instability. The erosion or burning out of the interior tube of the gun, which is in immediate contact with the powder gases, is due to the high pressure and intense heat of the gas at the instant a charge is fired. A great volume of gas is generated, and, being confined in the powder chamber by the projectile, its pressure rises to an enormous amount, which, in the case of the service charges in the United States guns, is as high as 17 tons to the square inch. This is accompanied by a proportionate rise in the temperature of the gases.

If it were possible to look into the powder chambers at the instant of discharge it would be found to be at a dazzling white heat. As the projectile begins to move down the bore of the gun these white-hot gases rush out of the powder chamber and as they stream from the larger chamber into the smaller bore they literally melt the hardening surface of the barrel. The process being probably assisted by some chemical reaction not yet thoroughly understood.

The gases, under the enormous pressure, quickly find out the very smallest way of escape past the base of the shell and they stream at an enormous velocity and still at a white heat through any such slight opening and melt the hard steel of the guns just as a stream of gun or hot water would cut its way through a block of ice.

British artillerymen have had great trouble from erosion because of the quality of powder which they use. The powder is known as cordite and the erosion is the price which the British pay for certain desirable qualities which are absent from other powders that do not cause so much erosion. Cordite consists of 58 parts of nitro-glycerin, 37 parts of gun cotton and five parts of vaseline, and it is responsible for the serious eroding effects. Bulk for bulk, the English powder is much more powerful than the United States navy powder.

BLUE RACER IS SWIFTEST.

Name Given Snake Because of Its Speediness—Nothing But a Streak Seen.

"The swiftest snake I have ever known is the 'blue racer,' as we used to call the reptile in the Arkansas foothills, and I want to tell you, this particular snake can travel like a blue streak," said a man from Arkansas, to a reporter for the New Orleans Times-Democrat.

"The fact is, the name 'blue racer' was given to the snake because of the member's swiftness. I have seen 'blue racers' dash across the road at such a rapid pace that you would only see a mere suggestion of blue, and if you did not happen to know the snake and its habits you would not know what it was. You could not possibly get the idea that it was a snake you had seen flash through the dust of the country and unless you knew something of the 'blue racer,' just what speed the snake makes I do not know, but it is a rapid pace. The rattlesnake is supposed to have good speed, and, as a matter of fact, the rattler can whiz along at a pretty swift gait. But the rattlesnake is not in it with the 'blue racer.'"

Phases of Drunkenness.

The intermediate stages of intoxication show many varieties. One man may be drunk only in his legs, and be totally unable to walk the proverbial chalk line, though his brain remains perfectly clear and unimpaired. Another, while retaining perfectly his equilibrium, may lose his discrimination as to words, or even lose his power of intelligible speech altogether.

Bleat Most Prominent.

UNCOMMON WISDOM.

Some Hopkinsville People
Profit By Neighbor's Experience.

It's a wise man who profits by the experience of his friends and neighbors. Here is a chance to do it and every man, woman or child in Hopkinsville who knows the misery of a bad back, the nervousness and restlessness caused by kidney complaint or the annoyance of urinary disorders, will show uncommon wisdom to profit by this citizen's advice.

J. W. Pritchett retired grocer of 762 East 7th St., says: My back has given me a great deal of trouble. The pain was not continually severe, but came on by intermittent spells, which were sometimes very painful especially after over-exertion of any kind. Being constantly on the outlook for something to relieve me, I happened to read of Doan's Kidney Pills, and was so impressed with the testimonials as to their worth, that I procured a box at Thomas & Trahern's drug store. The pills benefited me in every way and I hope that my endorsement will be the means of extending relief to some other sufferer.

For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Little Journeys
To the Homes of Great Restorers.

We have all been charmed with the sincerity of the woman who called to her neighbor, "How are ye? Not that I care a hang, but just to make a little conversation."

There is one sort of communication that does not belong to the conventional, forced type. It is the call of the wild, the prayer of the sufferer, the letter of the sick to the trusted physician.

If one is ill enough to admit it, he or she wants direct, personal, immediate help, not vague, experimental, generalizing. Codlin varnish proved to be the last remedy in the world for Mr. Peck's rheumatism, and it is only one of a thousand cases on record where they had to guess again. There is indiscriminate giving, and the weak and helpless are the victims. Two-thirds of the graft of the world is being looted from the sick.

This little journey is to the home office of a physician who has broken the world's record for the number of patients examined and treated. In this doctor with thousands of patients, with a mail large enough to require a special mail service, giving the world a square deal? Is he giving each case individual attention? Is he able to give the sufferer who has placed his life in his hands the latest and most improved treatment that science offers? Does he hold the record for the number of cases actually cured?

This is a big scientific question and it should be approached with the true scientific spirit of faithful inquiry, free from cant.

Dr. R. V. Pierce, head of the famous World's Dispensary Medical Association at Buffalo, would tell you that he does not attempt the superhuman feat of reading the hundreds of letters that are sent to him day in and day out, year after year. Marshall Field, the great Chicago merchant, would make clumsy work of personally taking care of all his mail orders. In great concern the work is systematized, with each detail in the hands of an expert. When Samantha Allen went to the New York store she insisted upon buying of the proprietor, but Mr. A. T. Stewart happened to be out. Dr. Pierce has built up a great scientific bureau of medical experts, and when you send or go to him for advice you get the prompt, direct, personal help your case demands. If you have locomotor ataxia who are not set upon by an important personage who has specialized on the ear in some foreign hospital. You get an expert upon your special trouble. If you apply for help in a letter this letter is carefully studied and immediately submitted to the physician who has devoted his life to fighting your particular trouble. If you come yourself you are put in charge of a doctor who has specialized for years upon the disease that threatens you. Which is the scientific way to go to one doctor and demand almost omniscient knowledge, or to depend upon a carefully organized bureau of experts?

Which is likely to be of the greatest help in time of trouble, one lone doctor passing upon twenty diseases, or twenty doctors ready to give their best advice upon one case?

Is it the day of the specialist, and the World's Dispensary Medical Association, with its staff of eminent physicians, with its dispensary and splendidly equipped hospital, with its world-famous medicines and its honor and care in dealing with the public, has fairly won the largest patronage that medical history records.

Time entails this little journey to a great life-saving station. The cure are on record. He who runs may read.

WINTERING BIG GAME.

WHAT GOVERNMENT DOES TO PROTECT ITS WILD ANIMALS.

Elk, Deer, Wild Bears and Other
Game on the Extensive Preserves Are Fed Regularly.

Last week we took a look at the Corbin game preserve near Newport, N. H., and saw how the largest herd of buffaloes in the world was cared for during the winter months. The successful management of this rapidly increasing herd is, of course, a matter of national importance; and the most important effort being made at the present time is the interest of American big game is the effort directed towards the permanent preservation of this and the few remaining herds of buffalo by the federal government.

But there are many other wild creatures in Corbin park which need more or less attention during the winter. There are elk and deer and wild boar by hundreds, and moose, nobody knows how many, since they usually remain deep in the woods, and show themselves only when the snow melts. Next to the buffaloes, the wild boar are the first animals requiring the attention of the superintendent. In the spring, summer and autumn, these vicious creatures get their own living chiefly by rooting in the ground, but when the earth is frozen hard as iron, and covered with snow besides, rooting is out of the question. The boar are fed upon whole corn, which, in the fall, is stored away in old deserted houses and barns, or in huge feed-bins made on piles of stone, in different sections of the forest. Each of these sections is in charge of a man whose business it is to see that all the game in his territory have food enough to keep them in good condition. First of all, he selects one or more places for feeding-grounds, and here he scatters his corn and other food. He also scatters, and it is the man's duty to see to it that all the boar in his section are regularly visiting the feeding grounds.

He must tramp over hill and dale, and through the dense woodland, and learn where the different colonies of boar are nesting. Then he must show them the way to the feeding-ground by laying trails of corn, sometimes for a mile or more, leading to one of the spots which is to be a woodland dining-room for the rest of the winter. In some cases this trail has to be laid over and over again before the man is sure that all the boar are visiting the feeding-ground. Afterwards, he feeds them every other day, making his trip on snow shoes, or on skis, and the deep snow usually makes it impossible to travel in the forest without them.

The alternate days are spent in feeding the elk and deer and moose. The natural food for these creatures in winter consists largely of the twigs of certain trees and shrubs. As most of the suitable twigs within reach of the animals have already been eaten, it is necessary to cut browse especially for them. This work is now done under the supervision of a forester, who sees that no valuable trees are cut for this purpose.

As I said before, the moose are not often seen, though their great tracks leading to and from piles of freshly cut browse are frequently seen. Not long ago, a man who was working in the forest had still more striking evidence of their presence. In the course of his wanderings he came upon a fallen tree, the top of which barred his path. He was an agile fellow, and leaping over it, he found almost on the back of a big bull moose, which leaped to its feet and charged him on the instant.

He needed no further incentive to "step lively," and dodged behind tree after tree in his efforts to escape the wrath of his mighty adversary, whose roar he had unwittingly broken. It was half an hour before he finally succeeded in escaping by strategy, and in spite of the low temperature, he was perspiring from every pore.

With the exception of the bear, the animals are usually fed early in the day, but the wild pigs are nervous folk (about they are rough customers when wounded or cornered), and unless extremely hungry do not like to approach the feeding grounds until dusk. Then it is that their food is scattered, for if it was put out earlier, it would be seen upon the feeding-ground, and bright and early next morning this is picked up by a little army of birds, chief among which are the ruffed grouse and blue jays.

FEW DIVORCES

Among the Female Graduates of Colleges.

Miss Laura D. Gill, the famous Dean of Barnard College, in speaking on the divorce subject, says: "In a wide acquaintance with college women I have personally known only one case of divorce. This was carried through without scandal or any offense to public morals. Among high-school graduates a limited inquiry would indicate a small percentage of divorces. It is the girls of luxurious homes, of whom little effort is demanded; the girls of the middle class whose fathers support them in ease, but fail to educate them for service; the girls of the laboring classes, with limited training and heavy burdens; these girls make the women in whose lives the restless spirit of the times may have. They have not been trained to look upon marriage as a serious chance for service, but merely as an opportunity to escape self-support. They have the courage and decency to demand ordinary loyalty and fair play from men, yet they often fail to realize their own obligations."

ASSESSOR WATTS.

Former Hopkinsville Merchant Holds Office In Oklahoma.

Mr. Frank W. Watts, formerly a merchant of this city, was a few days ago re-elected city assessor of Shawnee, Oklahoma. Mr. Watts, who was at one time a member of the firm of Watts, Richards & Co., moved west about four years ago and located in Shawnee. Two years later he was elected city assessor and last week he was re-elected to the office by 300 majority. Mr. Watts was elected on the Democratic ticket and with one exception his majority was the largest of any of the officers.

Telephone Development.

Had the first users of the telephone been able to foresee its present development, they would doubtless have expected that it would take work away from the messengers and errand boys to such an extent as to leave thousands of youngsters crying for employment, says Youth's Companion. The latest census report shows that the telephone systems of the country are today paying $26,000,000 a year in wages and salaries, and that the new construction in a single year has cost half as much more, most of which goes to pay labor. The telephone is a work-making instead of a labor-saving device in its effects upon the thousands seeking employment. This is the story of machinery the world over. One hundred messages go by wire to one that was sent by a boy, and the greater number, by the easier way, make more work.
